KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Choosing Love as a Solution

Scarlett Lewis

Scarlett experienced the unimaginable when her 6-year-old son Jesse was murdered at Sandy Hook Elementary School. Before he died, Jesse left a message on the kitchen chalkboard that read Nurturing, Healing, Love. Inspired by this message, Scarlett used what she learned during her own research and healing and created a global movement in schools, homes, and communities to motivate all ages to have the courage to be part of the solution. The Choose Love movement foundation is built on the important life skill of Character Social-Emotional Development (CSED) across the life span. Scarlett will discuss the effects negative bias has on daily functioning, along with how it is exacerbating our problems, and the power of proactive prevention to get ahead of the issues. In a world where fear dominates headlines, how can we Choose Love?

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will be able to describe why addressing the root cause of pain and suffering is necessary.
2. Participants will be able to describe the neuroscientific basis of how we think.
3. Participants will be able to describe why the diseases of despair are escalating.
4. Participants will be able to describe how Choosing Love or choosing fear influences our decisions.

MORNING BREAKOUTS

WORKSHOP A

Navigating the Duty to Warn for Health Care Professions - Ragner Jaeger, Esq

In this pivotal training session, designed for most licensed healthcare professionals operating within Maine, we delve into the complex and critical area of the Duty to Warn. With Maine laws as our guide, participants will explore the delicate balance between maintaining patient confidentiality and the legal obligations to report potential threats to third parties. This training is particularly tailored to address the diverse legal frameworks and ethical considerations across different healthcare disciplines, acknowledging that not all providers are governed by the same rules and perspectives on confidentiality breaches.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will be able to describe key aspects of the Duty to Warn rule.
2. Participants will be able to describe how to apply patient/client privacy laws in Duty to Warn situations.
3. Participants will be able to identify when Duty to Warn situations exist and steps to discharge their duty.

WORKSHOP B

Who is in Charge? The Law Enforcement Response to a Critical Incident - Sergeant David Farrar, Bangor Police Department Special Response Team, Commander

When an incident involving a law enforcement response occurs in a community, the primary goals of law enforcement are to minimize threats to the community. This is achieved through protocols involving a response, containment, and control, and ultimately a resolution. This resolution varies dependent on the nature of the incident. However, safety of the community and first responders, maintenance of civil order, and property preservation are all top priorities. To achieve those goals, the police utilize resources and employ some procedures and tactics that the public may not understand. One of those resources is a Special Response Team (SRT), sometimes referred to as SWAT. While not disclosing sensitive information that could jeopardize the success of a police response, this presentation will assist in removing some of the mystery and mis-perceptions of the police response and will assist in educating the public as to what can be expected.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will be able to identify at least two types of critical incidents in the community to which an SRT would respond.
2. Participants will be able to describe at least two elements of general SRT protocol to a critical incident that civilians could expect during a critical incident.
3. Participants will be able to identify at least two actions civilians should avoid during a critical incident.

WORKSHOP C

To Walk in Humility: Reflections on Culture, Power and Self-Awareness - John Yasenchak, LCPC, LADC, CCS

Borrowing from the Navajo Blessing Way "To Walk in Beauty", this workshop will offer an opportunity to explore how we walk with humility through our diverse cultural worlds. Utilizing a "critical incident" approach, we will examine how encounters with people different from ourselves can change us not just intellectually but also emotionally. This method of self-reflection, when practiced with humility, can help us discover bias and open our hearts to the diverse beauty of the human person. Institutionally, this type of communal reflection can help uncover the roots of prejudice, racism, and violence, as well as the abuse of power. Participants will be invited to both explore and share the experience of "walking in humility" through our complex cultural world as we open our hearts to the possibility of "the Beloved Community" (Dr. Martin Luther King).

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will attain a deepened appreciation of self-reflection regarding Cultural Encounters and will be able to describe what that means.
2. Participants will be able to state at least three principles of the cultural-relational approach in the helping professions (counseling, social work, medicine, law, etc.).
3. Participants will be able to articulate how to apply a "critical incident" approach to working with cultural humility.

WORKSHOP D

Community Grief & Trauma: Resilience After Tragedy - Stephanie Cinque, MSW

This presentation will discuss the philosophy, development, and structure of a Resiliency Center after a tragedy. It will also address what individuals need to know about how the brain is impacted by trauma, the importance of making sure all children/youth have one trusted adult and the cost of caring.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will be able to describe how the brain is impacted by different types of trauma.
2. Participants will be able to explain how to talk to students about identifying a trusted adult.
3. Participants will be able to recognize and describe the connection between self-care and the success of students.

AFTERNOON BREAKOUTS

WORKSHOP E

Risk Assessments and Safety Planning: What Do We Do? - Dr. Anthony Ng, MD

The following presentation will address the issue of risk assessments of individuals, including examining dynamic vs. static risks, as well as intrinsic and extrinsic factors that can influence risk. Additionally, strategies will be presented to highlight management of such risks, both individually and collaboratively with relevant stakeholders. The content will be presented in both didactic manner as well as case presentations from real life examples.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

- 1. Participants will be able to identify at least three factors that influence risk.
- 2. Participants will be able to differentiate the difference between dynamic and static risks.
- 3. Participants will be able to identify at least two tools to manage risks individually and collaboratively with relevant stakeholders.

WORKSHOP F

Resilience Through MNRI® Reflex Integration - Shannon Desilets, PT

This workshop will provide an overview of MNRI Therapy (also known as the Masgutova Method®), as well as take away techniques we can all utilize. Reflexes are essential for sensory-motor, behavioral-emotional, physical, and cognitive development. Trauma and stress can affect the function of reflex circuits, resulting in challenges with physical, mental, and cognitive function. The negative protective responses associated with the stress or trauma become anchored in the brain, specifically the areas responsible for fear and worry. During this time together, simple techniques will be provided to help bring more calm for the nervous system. These exercises are simple and can be performed on oneself or with a loved one or client. A therapy background is not at all necessary.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

- 1. Participants will be able to explain the fundamental aspects of MNRI® / Masgutova Method®.
- 2. Participants will be able to describe the proper development and integration of reflexes, and the effects of damaged reflexes as a result of stress or trauma.
- 3. Participants will be able to articulate the selected MNRI® / Masgutova Method® techniques that help calm and regulate the nervous system.

WORKSHOP G

Supporting Children, Their Families, and Communities in Times of Loss and Grief - Sara Asch, MA, ET

Even the youngest of us experience loss when an absence of order or the familiar is felt. The Center for Grieving Children has been supporting children and their families for 37 years, using members of the community as volunteer facilitators in age peer support groups. Long before the terms "ACEs" or "trauma informed practices" were used, the Center implemented a model inclusive of the ideas behind those terms, creating a safe, compassionate, non-judgmental environment to assist those experiencing loss and change. This provides a supportive space where children and adults develop ways to explore and express their feelings in an understanding community, finding their way to integrating the loss into a full, healthy, and meaningful life.

In this breakout session, we will look at the tasks of grieving, and grief and child development. We will also discuss the use of reflective listening as the foundation for supporting grief, and what that looks like with different age groups, including when using activities in group work. Breakout members will briefly experience being both a listener and a speaker using reflective listening, and process how that feels different from daily conversation. Lastly, we will examine the concepts of isolation, collective loss, and community, and their impact on grief.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

- 1. Participants will be able to describe the impact of grief on children across age and developmental stages.
- 2. Participants will be able to identify three healthy strategies to support a grieving child.
- 3. Participants will be able to describe how to mourn alongside a grieving child or community.

WORKSHOP H

Preventing Targeted Violence / Maine Threat Assessment Group Overview - Special Agent Kristina Angell

This presentation will address the concepts of Threat Assessment and Threat Management (TATM) and how to use these methods to prevent acts of targeted violence. It will define many key terms related to TATM principles, as well as provide examples of Pathway to Violence behaviors that offer opportunities for intervention. Case examples are woven throughout, and some content could be considered sensitive. The presentation will also identify what Maine is doing about the prevention of targeted violence.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

- 1. Participants will be able to define what targeted violence is.
- 2. Participants will be able to identify concerning behaviors indicating someone could be on the Pathway to Violence.
- 3. Participants will be able to describe what Maine is doing to prevent acts of targeted violence.

PLENARY #1

Building Community Resiliency in the Aftermath of Mass Violence

Danielle Parent, JD, LCSW

Drawing upon the experience of the Maine Resiliency Center, this session will examine the impact of mass violence on communities and explore considerations for building community resiliency in the wake of trauma. The Maine Resiliency Center, operated by Community Concepts Inc, was established in response to the mass shooting in Lewiston, ME on October 25, 2023 and serves as a place for connection and support to those who are impacted by this tragedy.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will be able to describe the community impact of mass violence.
2. Participants will be able to describe how to build community resiliency.
3. Participants will be able to describe the role of the Maine Resiliency Center.

PLENARY #2

Choosing Love Over Fear for Safety, Health, and Well-Being

Scarlett Lewis

Our personal power as humans is in the choices we make each day. Scarlett understood this as she faced the worst day of her life and had to choose how she moved forward. Love, or fear and anger? As we look at the state of our world, we can focus on 'choice moments' and how we are taking care of ourselves, which allows us to help others, thereby changing the world. Pain is a powerful connector, but so is love. Scarlett will discuss how we can move forward with a new message of how we're treating ourselves and others. This is not limited to a school shooting or Choose Love and can have a tremendous impact in everyone's lives.

Learning Objectives:

Upon completion of this workshop:

1. Participants will be able to describe the Choose Love Formula, including how its design returns your Locus of Control to you.
2. Participants will be able to describe how the purpose of pain relates to a redefining of the negative impact of stress.
3. Participants will be able to describe what actions we can take today to become the best versions of ourselves and help solve the problem of community violence.

PRESENTER BIOGRAPHIES

Scarlett Lewis:

Scarlett founded the nonprofit Jesse Lewis Choose Love Movement after her six-year-old son's murder in the Sandy Hook tragedy in 2012. She became part of the solution to the issues in society -- and that also caused the tragedy -- and advocates for social-emotional learning and character education. She's the author of Nurturing Healing Love: A Mother's Journey of Hope & Forgiveness, a memoir of her journey toward choosing love and forgiveness, and From Sandy Hook to the World: How the Choose Love Movement Transforms Lives, an in-depth look at how Scarlett founded the Movement and its impact around the world today. The Choose Love programming is extended into homes, communities, athletics, and the workplace, and has been accessed in all 50 states and 120 countries, serving over three million children. Speaking across the US and internationally to diverse audiences, Scarlett urges everyone to become part of the solution, dedicating her life to helping children and adults around the world to thrive mentally, socially, and emotionally, and she has been instrumental in changing legislation to incorporate SEL into schools. In 2021, Scarlett was named a Forbes 50 over 50 Impact Honoree, one of 50 women leading the way with impact and changing their communities and the world in ways big and small through social entrepreneurship, law, advocacy, and education.

field of mental health and served as the Chief Growth Officer for Sweetser prior to joining CCI. She completed the Hanley Health Leadership Development course in 2020 and was the 2019 recipient of NAMI Maine's Mental Health Leader award. Danielle graduated from the State University of New York at Buffalo with a Masters in Social Work and a Juris Doctorate in Law. She is a licensed independent clinical social worker.

Dr. Anthony Ng:

Dr. Ng is a board-certified psychiatrist who is the current medical director of Community Services for Northern Light Acadia Hospital. Previously, he served as the medical director of East Region Behavioral Health Network and prior to that, senior physician executive for Northern Light Acadia Hospital. During his previous tenure as senior physician executive, he helped to spearhead the development and implementation of the telepsychiatry program to the various emergency departments throughout the state. Dr. Ng brings with him a breadth of knowledge of the significant challenges facing psychiatric patients in crisis in Maine and has been active in collaboration with other state stakeholders in helping to address the challenges. Dr. Ng has a long history in crisis and emergency psychiatry. He is the past chair of the Coalition for Psychiatric Emergencies. Dr. Ng was also the former president of the American Association for Emergency Psychiatry. Dr. Ng has presented numerous lectures and written extensively on disaster mental health, emergency psychiatry, crisis management, cross cultural issues, homelessness, substance abuse issues, and other community mental health issues, both domestically and internationally. He has had numerous recognitions for his contributions including the Dr. Ulrich B Jacobsohn Lifetime Achievement Award from the Maine Association of Psychiatric Physicians, the Mary Floyd Cushman Award for Exceptional Humanitarian Service as Medical Volunteer from the Maine Medical Association, and the Bruno Lima Award and Special Presidential Commendation from the American Psychiatric Association. He was appointed by Governor Mills to be a member of the Maine Board of Licensure in Medicine and more recently a member of the Independent Commission reviewing the 2023 Lewiston Mass Shooting.

Shannon Desilets, PT:

Shannon's professional journey has always been a path of supporting others. She is an MNRI Core Specialist and Instructor, providing therapy to children and adults both nationally and internationally. She was appointed by and worked directly out of the office of Governor Chris Sununu in August of 2018 as Program Director of the Choose Love Movement. Her expertise in brain-based trauma therapy is what first introduced her to the Choose Love Movement, as she has provided MNRI therapy to the Newtown/Sandy Hook CT community for the last 11 years. She is a member of the School Safety Preparedness Taskforce, working directly with NH and US Homeland Security. Further, under her direction, New Hampshire has become the first in the nation to launch Choose Love for Caregivers (designed for foster caregivers and workers in the field), as well as Choose Love in Corrections. She is a published author for STRIVE magazine, sharing what NH has made happen with the Choose Love Movement. In addition, she serves as the Choose Love liaison for governmental departments nationwide. Her current position, Community Wellness Administrator, is now located in the New Hampshire Department of Health and Human Services, Division for Behavioral Health. While serving her state in this position, she continues to provide post trauma therapy to those in need, including the Lewiston tragedy's survivors and their loved ones.

Sara Asch, MA, ET:

Starting as an intern at the Center for Grieving Children in Portland, Maine 19 years ago, Sara now holds responsibility for identifying volunteer training needs, developing the training curriculum to meet those needs, and co-facilitating initial, ongoing, and topical facilitator trainings throughout the year at the Center. As a gifted and knowledgeable public speaker, with years of service to the community for crisis response and education through webinars, newsletters, workshops and trainings, Sara also hosts Wednesday night in person and Monday night virtual Bereavement Peer Support groups at the Center. Having developed an interest in art therapy while working as a K-12 art teacher through witnessing the ways students naturally processed their experiences through their artwork, Sara obtained a Master's Degree in expressive therapies/counseling from Lesley University with an emphasis in art therapy. In her private practice offering support to children, teens and adults during bereavement and other life transitions, Sara employed expressive modalities to give clients a way to explore and express feelings. Additionally, she has worked as a clinician in a group home setting for adolescents struggling with severe developmental and mental health challenges, using art to help them safely express their feelings when words failed them. One of seven siblings, Sara is forever grateful to the unwavering loving dedication and tremendous effort her parents put into raising their "brood". They were both grieving children themselves, having each experienced the death of their own mothers and subsequently, the upheaval of their homes and families when they were very young. The more immersed Sara has become in this work, the more she has realized how their losses and grief impacted the way she was raised, recognizing the lifelong impact of childhood grief.

Sergeant David Farrar, Bangor Police Department, Special Response Team Commander:

Sergeant Farrar has been actively employed by the Bangor Maine Police Department since 2011, followed by graduating the Maine Criminal Justice Academy's Basic Law Enforcement Training Program the following December. He has held multiple specialized positions and assignments within the Bangor Police Department including; evidence technician, forensic crash reconstructionist, field training officer, honor guard, less lethal/chemical munitions instructor, active threat response instructor, Special Agent with the Maine Drug Enforcement Agency, and Special Response Team member. He currently is assigned as the Commander of Bangor's Special Response Team (SWAT), and as a lead active threat response instructor.
